2nd Kiel Food Science Symposium

May 22-23, 2012
Kiel, Germany

Max Rubner-Institut
Federal Research Institute of Nutrition and Food

With support of „Gemeinschaft der Förderer und Freunde der Milchforschung an der Bundesforschungsanstalt für Ernährung und Lebensmittel e.V." and „Forschungsgemeinschaft Fischwirtschaft e.V."

Invitation to Kiel

The Max Rubner-Institut, location Kiel, invites you to participate in the 2nd Kiel Food Science Symposium and to submit contributions for oral presentations or posters. The symposium will be held from May 22-23, 2012, at the Max Rubner-Institut in Kiel. It will start at 1:00 pm on May 22, 2012, and ends at 1:00 pm on May 23, 2012. Official language of the symposium will be English.

A half-day national workshop with a strict focus on dairy science („Kieler Milchvormittag") will precede the conference in the morning of May 22, 2012, at the same venue (9:00-12:00 am). It is possible to participate in this workshop (language: German) by separate registration (see separate announcement).

Scope of the Symposium

The Kiel Food Science Symposium takes place in a 2-year rhythm. The aim of this international symposium is:

- to offer a scientific platform for representatives from academia, industry, food authorities and policy,
- to stimulate the presentation of up-to-date research activities,
- to obtain information on new developments and
- to exchange views with colleagues from many countries on scientific progress and applications.

The symposium will address various aspects of scientific research on:

- Functional Food (first day)
- Food Safety (second day)

with a focus on dairy products and seafood.

Plenary Lectures

Internationally recognized experts will present plenary lectures:

- Prof. H.G. Kristinsson, Icelandic Food Research, Reykjavík, Iceland: Functional food from marine resources
- Prof. R.J. FitzGerald, University of Limerick, Limerick, Ireland: Bioactive peptides from food proteins
- PD Dr. L. Beutin, Federal Institute for Risk Assessment, Berlin, Germany: EHEC in food - current state of knowledge
- Prof. A. Lopata, James Cook University, Townsville, Queensland, Australia: Health risk of parasites in fish

How to Get to the Symposium

Kiel is the capital city of the most northern federal state in Germany (Schleswig-Holstein) located at the beautiful Kiel Fjord of the Baltic Sea. With its maritime flair, Kiel is also well-known as the world capital of sailing („Kiel week"). Kiel can be reached conveniently by all kinds of public transport facilities:

- by airplane to Hamburg airport or to Lübeck airport. An hourly-served shuttlebus ("Kielius") is connecting Hamburg airport with Kiel city. Hourly served train connections are also linking Kiel with Hamburg and Lübeck.
- by ferry from Sweden, Norway, Lithuania and Russia
- by car via A 215 motorway which ends close to the city centre.

Accommodation

The Max Rubner-Institut - Location Kiel is in the city centre in walking distance to the harbour and to the central station. A number of hotels of various categories are in close vicinity of the Symposium venue.

For your convenience, hotels are listed on the official web site of Kiel and can be booked online: www.kiel.de (go to: „Touristik").

Social Programme

A Conference dinner (8 p.m., May 22, 2012) will take place in a restaurant located at the nice Kiel Fjord of the Baltic Sea.
