This talk is part of the summer school of the International Post-Graduate Programme “Religious Cultures in 19th- and 20th-Century Europe” (www.igk-religioese-kulturen.uni-muenchen.de).

The International Post-Graduate Programme is jointly organised by the universities of Munich and Prague. At this year’s summer school in Istanbul, the participants discuss religious change in the Eastern European empires of the 19th century, as well as the profound religio-political cleavages in the successor states of 20th-century Europe.
