3rd scientific & final GreenNet conference:

Perspectives for biological & cultural diversity along the European Green Belt

Good examples, successful measures & new ideas

Call for papers, posters, presentations

03./04. June 2014 Eisenach, Germany

Context and Motivation

Regarding the European Green Belt as an ecological network (1st scientific conference 2012) and looking at the possibilities of established and new landscape policy instruments (2nd scientific conference 2013) the 3rd conference is focussed on successful initiatives and projects along the European Green Belt.

Despite the heterogeneous frame conditions activities and initiatives of a future orientated sustainable development are already realized along the European Green Belt – The third GreenNet conference will give a platform for those encouraging examples.

Furthermore the conference will present results of the GreenNet project and give impulses for the further development of the European Green Belt.

Key Note-speakers will deal with

- Transition movement—spreading signs of hope and resilience
- Economy of Happiness as key to biological & cultural diversity
- Commons, local - transnational cooperation
- Natural capital, ecosystem services of the Green Belt, Ecology as an economical factor
- Green infrastructure

GreenNet Results and core outputs will be presented:

- Short presentation of project results, here safeguarding strategies for the Central European GreenBelt
- Lobbying activities and success stories to promote the Central European Green Belt
- Presentation and Discussion of the GreenNet-Charta (GreenNet Management and Protection strategy)
- Posters showing results out of the GreenNet pilot regions

Call for presentations, short papers & posters

Good examples, successful measures & new ideas

- Integrative policy and governance of the European Green Belt to enhance biological diversity, local economy and cultural heritage
- Successful nature protection concepts, good examples of cooperation of local land users and nature conservation
- Strengthening local/regional economies, rural development, regional money, Community supported agriculture
- Successful or failed cross-border, cross-sectoral, cross-cultural cooperation & dialogue: lessons learned
- Education, cooperation, successful stakeholder participation concerning Green Belt activities
- Eco-tourism, regional products, local (organic) food production, sustainable and social entrepreneurship, eco-innovation

Conference Proceedings

You are kindly encouraged to send proposals for presentations, short papers and/or posters dealing with the topics of the open call in English. Please send them (1- 6 pages, arial, 11pt, line pitch: 1.2) in before 15.03.2014 to greenet@fh-erfurt.de.

Please state, if you would like to give a presentation at the conference (10 or 15 min.). It will be decided by the scientific committee whether the contribution will be accepted as presentation or poster (A0 upright format).

Travelling costs of accepted speakers will be refunded up to 200 €.

The papers and posters will be printed in the conference proceedings, which will be published in „Berichte des Instituts Verkehr und Raum“ (ISSN 1868-8586) and online. Presentations will be published online.

GreenNet-Buffer and GreenBelt Cafe

We would like to show the biological and cultural diversity along the European Green Belt by sharing local food with an intercultural buffet.

Please feel free to bring your favorite local/regional products as well as to send your favorite regional or national recipe with pictures to greenet@fh-erfurt.de before 15.03. 2014.

The 3rd GreenNet conference wants to give space for an international exchange on further strategies and cooperations concerning the European Green Belt. Please feel invited to an international exchange concerning the presented examples as well as on your personal/professional connection to the European Green Belt and your ideas for the future of the European Green Belt.
