CALL FOR PAPERS

February 3 – 4, 2011

DECHEMA-Haus · Frankfurt am Main

Functional Genomics

Next Generation Applications & Technologies

(Successor of Status Seminar Chip Technologies)

www.dechema.de/chips

INVITATION

The field of Functional Genomics is growing and expanding continuously. This is due to the fact that the basic information in terms of comprehensive molecular data sets is or becomes available, such as genomic, epigenetic expression and interaction information at all molecular levels. In addition, more and more techniques arise, which permit similarly global analyses also at the level of individual living organisms, currently still with an emphasis on cell culture but moving more and more toward studies of model organisms and human tissues. Understanding the regulative processes that govern cellular life will translate relatively quickly into biomedical and pharmacological applications, biotechnical and biosynthetic developments and metagenetic – in other words ecological – consequences.

The seminar „Functional Genomics – Next Generation Applications & Technologies“ (successor of Status Seminar Chip Technologies) will scrutinise and highlight applications and technologies in functional genomics. Scientific lectures and poster presentations as well as exhibiting companies will demonstrate the enormous potential of today's technology and provide a glance at what the future may hold.

NEW! – TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER SESSION INCLUDED

Take advantage of this new session to assess the scientific and industrial landscape of technologies and functional genomics and to promote your collaboration and technology transfer offers.

This session is a unique opportunity for scientists to present their research findings to potential partners from industry in a 10 min talk. Find the right partner to translate your research into products!

NEW! – PANEL DISCUSSION: GENOME-WIDE ASSOCIATION STUDIES (GWAS)

International renowned experts will discuss the pros and cons of „genome-wide association studies“, its usefulness and applications as well as promises and limitations. Join this panel discussion and let us know what you think about GWAS.
