

Do your research in Berlin in future! Stiftung Charité announces funding programs for international scientists

Are you currently working abroad or have only been in Germany for a short time, and would you like to take part in the life sciences and medical research in Berlin with your interesting scientific ideas? Then come to the Berlin Institute of Health (BIH) with its partners at Charité – Universitätsmedizin Berlin and at Max Delbrück Center for Molecular Medicine (MDC) now! Stiftung Charité is announcing two funding programs—tailored to your respective career stage.

1. Einstein BIH Visiting Fellows

- Top-level scientists who remain employed by their home institutions abroad but simultaneously establish a working group in Berlin and are regularly available there
- Funding for an international collaboration and a scientific idea with long-term potential
- Up to 450,000 euro for three years to implement the working group and integrate the fellow (continuation for further two years plus follow-up funding is possible)

2. Humboldt Research Fellows at BIH

- Younger or established exceptionally qualified scientists from abroad (or already having been in Germany for a maximum of six months) who wish to work on a life science research project in Berlin
- Option for experienced scientists (4 to 12 years after having completed a PhD): 3,150 euro a month for 6 to 18 months (can be split up) or
- Option for postdoctoral scientists (up to 4 years after having completed a PhD): 2,650 euro a month for 6 to 24 months
- Several additional benefits
- Significantly better prospects for the promotion of positively reviewed applications than with the subject and institution independent Humboldt Research Fellowships

Plan your research stay now together with an academic host at BIH, Charité, or MDC. Applications have to be submitted by you (Humboldt Research Fellows at BIH) or your host (Einstein BIH Visiting Fellows) by January 15, 2019 at the latest.
